VCI Manufacturer Daubert Cromwell Opens Subsidiary in China

ALSIP, IL -- Daubert Cromwell, a global supplier of corrosion inhibitor packaging materials for industry, opened business offices in China at the beginning of June, 2009. The new operation is called Daubert China, Ltd. and is headquartered in Shanghai. It was established to directly provide local access to the company's complete line of VCI packaging and corrosion preventive liquids.

For more than 10 years, Daubert Cromwell has helped metal producers in China protect metal parts during all stages of manufacture, storage and shipment. During that time it learned the specific requirements of customers who do business in and with China, particularly in the automotive, heavy equipment and electronics markets. Having a local source of supply ensures that long-time customers, as well as global customers who are expanding into the China market, get in a more convenient way genuine Daubert® brand products with the high level of quality and performance they expect.

"Our business and our knowledge of the VCI market in China have certainly grown over the past decade," explained President & CEO Martin J. Simpson. "We have developed a loyal customer base whose business we value highly. We established Daubert China, Ltd. to be a local source that provides customers with more access to all of their VCI packaging and corrosion preventive products."

Shanghai Daubert (Daubert China) is a wholly owned subsidiary of Daubert Cromwell LLC, USA. It is led by General Manager Polly Huang, who was promoted from her previous title as China Country Manager. She and her team of experienced sales and logistics professionals work with local suppliers and VCI customers, in addition to using all the resources of the parent company in Alsip, IL.

"We at Daubert China are dedicated to solving corrosion problems," Simpson continued. "Polly and her team will be happy to recommend, based on customer needs, various packaging materials and methods for protecting metals using Daubert proprietary technology and supported by Daubert's full range of technical capabilities."

Daubert Cromwell, recognized as "The Leading Name in Corrosion Prevention®" since 1948, has operations in the US, Mexico, China, Southeast Asia, India, Germany, partners in 26 countries, and more than 500 distributor locations. It is recognized worldwide for highest quality corrosion preventive packaging used in automotive, heavy equipment, electronics, and military markets worldwide.
